

ZECOS Steering Committee Meeting

Where: Morbach, Germany

When: 20th and 21th November

We attend the ZECOS Steering Committee meeting as part of the capitalization activities of the MED programme project ZERO CO₂, where Kyoto Club was partner and ended in late April 2013. The ZECOS projects invite us to attend the event and to present the results of our similar project on zero emissions communities. This will give the opportunities of the ZERO CO₂ municipalities to integrate their activities with the new methodologies on local carbon emission system developed by ZECOS consortium. This is also an important opportunity to create synergies among different INTERREG programmes, and to create future synergies.

ZECOS - Development and Introduction of the Communal Zero CO₂e Emission Certification System as a Tool for Sustainable Communities and Regions is a European project bringing together 11 partners from across the North Western Europe. The project aims at developing a Zero CO₂e Emission Awarding System acknowledging communities, which set themselves CO₂e reduction goals that are far beyond the regular compliance. Eight ZECOS communities have alongside started their way to Zero CO₂e Emissions by identifying full local energy efficiency and renewable energy potentials, setting them up into management plans, implementing local emission reducing projects and many more.
